

STALINGRAD DEFENDERS HOLD NAZIS AT BAY

Chairman Vinson Predicts Early End to U-Boat Menace

Soviet Flag is Still Flying Over Steel City On The Volga

BY ROGER D. GREENE
Associated Press War Editor

The Red flag still flew over rubble-heaped Stalingrad today and at mid-day the Russian high command announced that Soviet troops counter-attacking in some districts of the Volga metropolis had forced the Germans to retreat.

It was the 29th day of epic defense.

German field headquarters asserted briefly that Nazi shock troops had captured additional strongly fortified blocks of houses in Stalingrad after violent close-quarter fighting.

"Attacks don't halt," said dispatches to the Soviet newspaper Pravda. "Hand-to-hand clashes are going on in the square, on street crossings and in houses."

Reference to "the square" perhaps indicated that the Germans were now battling near the heart of the city.

"Our units repulsed several enemy attacks and advanced in some sectors," the Soviet command said.

"Men of guards (Elite) unit, in stubborn fighting with the enemy, wiped out more than 400 Germans and destroyed three tanks and two armored cars."

Dispatches to the German newspaper Frankfurter Zeitung admitted that "the fall of Stalingrad, and therewith the final breaking up of the Russian front, has been delayed," but asserted that "it has not been put off until winter."

"Heavy Russian guns were reported shelling the Germans from the east bank of the Volga, and fresh Soviet reserves were said to be crossing the river in canoes to bolster the city's hard-pressed defenders."

"The intensity of the battle is increasing," said Berlin reports to the Swiss newspaper National Zeitung.

"No one can estimate how many still are living in the city which once had half a million inhabitants."

"But if the battle lasts half an hour, it is swarming suddenly with human figures creeping out of hiding with terrified faces, carrying buckets and trying to reach places in the neighborhood to fetch water for the day."

Fresh Nazi troops were reported moving into action to replace the invaders' terrific losses, and advices reaching Ankara, Turkey, described large new movements of

BULLETINS

A Southeast Coast Town, England, Sept. 22.—(P)—A movie theater was hit by a bomb this afternoon when a Nazi raider attacked this town, but it was not known immediately whether a show was in progress at the time.

Berlin (From German Broadcasts) Sept. 22.—(P)—General Walther von Luetwitz, 84, who was chief of staff for Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm's army in World War I, died today. He was commanding general of the third army at the end of that conflict.

Rome (From Italian Broadcasts) Sept. 22.—(P)—The high command said today that Allied mechanized forces which struck through the Libyan desert against Axis forces in the neighborhood of Gialo oasis at dawn last Wednesday finally had been driven off after a five-day fight.

London, Sept. 22.—(P)—The Vichy radio reported that nine flying fortresses left Gibraltar this morning flying toward the east. Reuters said.

Situation On Jungle Front Is Unchanged

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Australia, Sept. 22.—(P)—In their first attack of any strength on Allied positions in New Guinea in two weeks, 27 Japanese bombers, escorted by ten fighter planes, dropped bombs in scrub bush 32 miles north of Port Moresby yesterday, but caused neither damage nor casualties, a communique said today.

The jungle battleground where Allied troops have stalled the Japanese drive on Port Moresby is about 32 miles northeast of that Allied base, on the southern side of the Owen Stanley range, but a spokesman said the attack had no direct bearing on the fighting there and the situation was unchanged.

Allied fighter planes swept along the Kokoda track between Kokoda and Buna, Japanese landing base, and destroyed a bridge believed to have been a wire route over the Kunusi river below Kokoda.

The bridge originally was destroyed when the Allies abandoned the area, but the Japanese had reconstructed it because of its importance for bringing up supplies from Buna.

Tax Revenue In August Up

Washington, Sept. 22.—(P)—Social security, liquor and income levies accounted for about two-thirds of the $681,667,158.10 tax revenue Bureau during August, the treasury department reported today.

The total figure represented a flat increase of $267,296,183.37 over the collections for August, 1941.

Although social security topped the entire list in total dollar volume, followed by the liquor levy, it was the income tax take which showed the biggest increase of the three over the previous August, more than doubling the 1941 figure.

Cigarette taxes continued to yield heavily, bringing in some ten million dollars more in August last year.

Leading the new wartime levies which had no figure to port a year ago was the automobile use tax—that little pink sticker on your windshield—which netted more than $13,000,000 of new revenue for the month.

Standardized Auto Blackout Lights Soon To Be Required

St. Louis, Sept. 22.—(P)—Those extra lights you notice on automobiles and busses aren't some more frills, they're standard blackout lamps which soon will be required for all civilian automobiles authorized to operate during a blackout.

Much improved over pre-war experimental headlight masks, the new lamps are simple gadgets which don't disturb the car's normal lighting system, explained H. C. Mead, General Motors lighting expert, in an address before a

Widow Tells Strange Tale Of Amnesia

Awakens After Year's Loss Of Memory To Find Self Married To Stranger

Hollywood, Sept. 22.—(P)—The attractive young widow of a retired Binghamton, N. Y., newspaper man related today a story of nearly a year's loss of memory and her recovery from amnesia to find herself married to a man she can't remember.

Mrs. Glory Weller Miller, 25, appealed to the manager of a motor hotel for assistance yesterday after awakening and finding her surroundings unfamiliar. The manager took her to the police station.

There police speedily identified her through a picture supplied by her husband, Henry Miller, a commercial photographer who had reported her missing.

But Miller was a stranger to his wife. She had no recollection of meeting him, of their marriage in Las Vegas, Nev., May 1, or of her life with him since.

The shock which led to her plight occurred Nov. 4, 1941, she said, when she entered her home in Atascadero, Calif., and found her first husband, H. Pierce Weller, 60, dead. That was her last recollection until her recovery in the hotel.

She didn't know the police station was at war; she had no recollection of the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Weller and the former Glory Beck were married in Binghamton Aug. 1, 1936. Weller resigned as city editor of the Binghamton Press July 15, 1939, after 25 years' service, and the couple moved to Atascadero.

FARM BLOC IN BATTLE OVER PARITY

Effort Renewed to Inject New and Higher Basis for Prices Into the Anti-Inflation Bill

BARKLEY IS CONFIDENT

BY JACK BELL

Washington, Sept. 22.—(P)—A resurgent farm bloc fought a nip and tuck battle with administration forces today in its effort to inject a new and higher basis for agricultural parity prices into the anti-inflation bill.

Although Democratic Leader Barkley (Kentucky) and others remained confident they could defeat a proposed upward revision of 4.6 per cent, the senate was reported so evenly divided on the parity question that a handful of votes might decide the issue.

"It looks all right, Barkley told reporters before the senate began its second day of debate on the measure. The house, a day behind, arranged for general discussion of the bill today with amendments coming up for a vote tomorrow.

Parity is a price standard which, when reached, is calculated to equalize the return the farmer receives for what he sells with the prices of the things he buys. In the past, it has been used as the basis for making government loans and as a goal for a fair return to the farmer.

It has assumed paramount importance now because, under terms of the pending bill, it would become the lowest point at which price ceilings could be placed on farm products by President Roosevelt in carrying out the prospective congressional directive to stabilize prices, wages and salaries.

Despite the president's assertion that he was "unalterably opposed" to any change in the basis of computing parity, Senators Hatch (D-NM) and Thomas (D-Ola) submitted amendments which would include farm labor costs for the first time in computing parity.

FIRST LADY VISITOR AT HOUSING PROJECT

Philadelphia, Sept. 22.—(P)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt visited at 10 families in the Richard Allen Homes, a negro low-cost housing project, last night.

She joined the development before receiving the Youth City award from Youth City, a negro recreational project, in recognition of her "splendid work in the development of inter-racial good will."

In one home, tenant Sylvester Stevenson told her he was earning $22 weekly as a utility man in a Central City restaurant.

"But haven't you had a raise lately?" she asked.

"That amount includes the raise," Stevenson said.

"It's not all that it might be," Mrs. Roosevelt replied.

SECRETARY IS NAMED FOR PAROLE BOARD

Harrisburg, Sept. 22.—(P)—G. Richard Bacon, of Lansdowne, will be the secretary of the new Pennsylvania parole board.

Before his appointment yesterday to the $4,500 post, Bacon served as a parole board representative in eastern Pennsylvania prisons. A graduate of Westtown school and Haverford College, he studied at Harvard University's institute of criminal law and criminology.

Bacon assisted in making a survey of probation work for the state welfare department and served as field worker for the Pennsylvania prison society and as senior investigator in Eastern Penitentiary.

Pope Receives U. S. Official

Bern, Switzerland, Sept. 22.—(P)—Pope Pius XII has received from Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal representative to the Vatican, the president's own ideas on war objectives and presumably on peace objectives and is expected to grant the American another audience before his departure, Vatican circles disclosed today.

(Reuters said the Vichy radio reported that Taylor and Harold J. Tittman, United States charge d'affaires at the Vatican, had another 50 minute audience with the Pope today.)

Taylor's first audience with the Pope was last Saturday. Since then he has been conferring with the British and French envoys to the Vatican and the representatives of conquered Poland and Yugoslavia. It is expected that he will confer with other accredited representatives to the Vatican before his final audience with the Pope and his departure for Spain.

CAPTURED TROPHIES INSPECTED BY WILLKIE

Moscow, Sept. 22.—(P)—Wendell L. Willkie spent his second day of sightseeing in Moscow today, looking over the Red army's collection of captured German trophies and banners on display in central house. He planned to attend a jazz band concert featuring American tunes tonight.

Willkie, President Roosevelt's touring representative, was received yesterday by Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, but no date has been set yet for him to see Premier Stalin.

The American, rapidly becoming a familiar figure on Moscow streets, stopped whenever possible to talk to the people about various phases of life in wartime.

25 DROWN RETURNING FROM ISLAND PICNIC

Midland, Ont., Sept. 22.—(P)—Twenty-five men drowned last night when the launch in which they were returning from a picnic sank off Beausoleil island in Georgian Bay, a search disclosed today.

The men were in a group of 41, all employees of the Midland Machine and Foundry Company. The other 16 were saved.

One of the dead was Bert Corbett, foreman of the foundry in this city 80 miles north of Toronto. He was owner of the pleasure boat in which the men had gone for a day's outing on Georgian Bay, an arm of Lake Huron.

Philadelphia Couple Enlist at Same Time

Philadelphia, Sept. 22.—(P)—The Maurice A. Dragoons are in the army now.

In one room in the customs house, a 24-year-old war worker, joined up as an aviation cadet in the Army Air Corps. At the same time in an adjoining room his wife, also 24, joined the WAAACS.

"We'll be together again," Dragoos said, "when we've licked the Axis."

Tirade Shows Italy Growing Dissatisfied

Article in Publication Indicates Lack of Faith In Laval

CARRIES NOTE OF FEAR

BY THOMAS F. HAWKINS

Bern, Switzerland, Sept. 22.—(P)—A bitter tirade against France by a semi-official Italian publication was interpreted today as indicating Italy's growing dissatisfaction with what she has gotten out of the Axis and her dwindling hopes of winning any material rewards from participation in the war.

This conclusion was drawn by experienced observers from an article which appears in the weekly foreign affairs journal, Relazione Internazionale, and which, though directed at France, lacked any expression of faith that the Nazis would support Italy's war ambitions.

The article, voicing a fear known to have been widely held for some time in Italy, expressed belief that Pierre Laval, French chief of government, is cooperating with the Germans in the hope of winning the upper hand over Italy and foiling Italian territorial ambitions.

Relazione's viewpoint coincided in many ways with views generally held in United Nations quarters. It made these points:

1. The "patriotic ideal" of (Turn to Page Nine)

Canada Bars Dreiser Talk

Ottawa, Sept. 22.—(P)—Theodore Dreiser has been barred from making public statements or speeches in Canada on a charge that he expressed anti-British views in an interview published yesterday by the Toronto Evening Telegram.

Attorney General Gordon Constant of Ontario quoted from the Telegram's interview with the 71-year-old Indiana-born writer and lecturer as follows:

"I would rather see the Germans in England than those damn aristocratic horse-riding snobs there now. The English have done nothing in this war thus far except borrow money, planes and men from the United States. They stay at home and do nothing. They are lousy."

Dreiser had been scheduled to speak at the Eaton Auditorium in Toronto tonight on "Democracy on the Offensive."

He was not available in Toronto for comment.

Cooperation Of All Farmers Is Urged For Scrap Roundup

Arrangements for Huge Harvest Picnic Friday Said to be in Shape

OUTSTANDING EVENT

With all plans completed and arrangements for the program in final shape, Warren and Warren county are ready for the big Harvest Picnic and Scrap Roundup to be held Friday of this week in Crescent Park. This picnic, under the chairmanship of A. F. Kottcamp, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, is expected to be the greatest event of its kind in the history of northwestern Pennsylvania.

The purpose of the picnic—the collection of 500 tons of scrap from the farms of the county—will be realized only if every farmer makes the project his own and contributes his part to the drive. The seventeen Granges of the county, whose committees are in charge of the actual solicitation, have the ultimate responsibility of putting idle salvage to work for the armed forces of the nation. Weigh Stations have reported to (Turn to Page Six)

New Attacks On Solomons Is Predicted

Washington, Sept. 22.—(P)—Secretary of the Navy Knox declared today it was a safe and sound assumption that the Japanese would make major new attempts to reconquer the Solomon Islands.

Knox was asked at a press conference about repeated reports that the Japanese would throw heavy naval and other forces into new efforts to drive the marines out of the islands.

Saying that predictions of such action constituted "a safe and sound assumption," Knox declared that "we operate on that basis." He added: "To do otherwise would be foolish overconfidence."

The secretary, who had just returned from the American Legion convention in Kansas City, said he was "tremendously inspired and gratified over the action they took there."

The secretary informed that Jack Singer, International News Service correspondent with the (Turn to Page Nine)

W.C.T.U. IN FAVOR OF WARTIME PROHIBITION

Uniontown, Sept. 22.—(P)—The state convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union ended here with the 480 delegates going on record as favoring "wartime prohibition" and deciding to meet next year in Lancaster.

The report of the resolutions committee, which was adopted last night, petitioned the president and congress to prohibit the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages for the duration of the conflict—"for wartime prohibition."

The president and congress also were asked to enact "immediately the Sheppard Bill (S-860) to protect the service men from liquor and vice in the areas of military camps."

The bill would halt the sale of intoxicants near camps.

"Long Chance" Taken By War Correspondents Draws Praise

Washington, Sept. 22.—(P)—"The long chances" which war correspondents are taking to get the news fills Secretary of Navy Knox with "a great sense of pride."

Their work, Knox told his press conference today, "is very admirable and creditable to the profession."

The tribute was evoked by information that another newsman, Jack Singer of the International News Service, was missing in action. Singer was attached to the Pacific fleet.

Knox is publisher of the Chicago Daily News and he related how he had had the experience of having to restrain some of his

SEA POWER IS SHIFTING TO THE ALLIES

Head of House Naval Affairs Committee Says Allies Are Beginning To Turn Corner

PROGRAM SPEEDED UP

Washington, Sept. 22.—(P)—"Dieppe and the Solomon Islands are merely forecasts of the shape of things to come," Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) of the house naval affairs committee declared today in a public statement on the naval expansion program.

The Georgian's statement, asserting that "at sea we are beginning to turn the corner," was issued to reporters after President Roosevelt had requested yesterday an additional $2,731,154,308 to bring the navy's current year appropriation to a record high of approximately $17,000,000,000.

"We are now pushing our greatly augmented program of naval construction with the utmost speed at our command," Vinson said. "When it is completed and joins with the British and other Allied navies, it will give the United Nations a more nearly global strength at sea than the world has ever seen, and seapower, welded by ships and aircraft, is the anvil on which the decision in this global war is being hammered out."

Vinson predicted the new navy would give the United States "the added escort and patrol craft needed to put an end to the u-boat menace" and "will enable us to take the offensive with superior force in any theatre we choose."

"When the new had front is launched in the west of Europe," he said, "it is sea-power that will launch it. Sea-power will transport the men and material needed to the point of attack. To keep them flowing in an unbroken stream until the whole Axis edifice has crumbled, America and the other United Nations must have sea-power in overwhelming strength, far beyond challenge by any force that Berlin, Rome and Tokyo can bring against it."

Kaiser After 50,000 Men For Shipyards

New York, Sept. 22.—(P)—Hiring of 29,000 New York workmen for the Portland, Ore., shipyards of Henry J. Kaiser began today with Kaiser's agents expecting to send the first 600 west on a special train Thursday.

Thomas Murphy, Kaiser recruiting chief, said 50,000 men were being sought from New York, Indiana, Illinois and Texas. He added that if New York's unemployment problem promoted a lively response, perhaps the entire 50,000 would be taken from here.

Fifty special trains supplied by a nationwide syndicate of railroads will transport the workmen to Portland for $75 each, including meals. Murphy said the Kaiser company would pay the syndicate for those hired, deducting the amount from pay checks over a period of several weeks.

Only persons to be interviewed the first few days will be American Federation of Labor Building Trades members carrying referral cards from their unions. When these are exhausted, Murphy said, the United States Employment Service will be asked to furnish the rest.

No previous knowledge of shipbuilding is required, agents said. (Turn to Page Nine)

Death Claims Kidnap Victim

Alton, Ill., Sept. 22.—(P)—August Luer, 86-year-old Alton banker and meat packer who was held for $100,000 ransom in 1933 but was released unharmed, died in Memorial hospital today.

Until he was taken to the hospital Saturday Luer continued to report each morning at his bank desk.

Luer, then 77, was dragged from his home the night of July 10, 1933 by a woman and two men who gained entrance on a ruse. He was in shirt sleeves and house slippers.

Mrs. Luer, 75, was knocked down by one of the abductors and suffered a scalp wound. She died in 1939.

Ransom demands were sent to the family. Intermediaries were named to negotiate with the kidnapers. Then Luer was released at midnight, July 16, near Collinsville. Members of the family said not a cent of the demanded $100,000 ransom was paid.

Five men and a woman were convicted of the kidnaping and sentenced to prison in the fall of 1933.

"Not a Slacker in the Lot..."

This cartoon was first published by the Omaha World-Herald originator of the "Nebraska Scrap Plan." In three weeks the people of Nebraska collected 136,171,012 pounds of scrap metals for war industries. That was 103.4 pounds per capita for every man, woman and child in the state. The Times-Mirror believes that the citizens of Pennsylvania are equal to Nebraska's challenge. Let's get out to scrap to bury the Axis!

Clip These Scrap Lists To Help Clip the Axis

If you haven't used it during the last six months, and you're not going to use it in the next six months—then it's scrap.

That's a fair and easy test to apply to every piece of metal in a farm or home.

If you find by this test that something you own is scrap, then its place is on the firing line. The firing line begins in Warren county's scrap salvage depots.

- As part of the nationwide News-papers' Scrap Metal Drive the Times-Mirror prints below some check lists. They suggest where to look and what to look for. Fish Warden Gives Address To Rotarians

At the Rotary club meeting yesterday, Ross C. Bailey of Youngsville, the enforcement officer of the Pennsylvania Fish Commission, gave a talk which held the undivided interest of every man who heard him. He gave a brief history of the State Fish Commission from the time it was founded in 1873 down to the present time and mentioned the fact that the first hatchery was located in Marietta in Lancaster county.

Appropriations to the Fish Commission by the legislature in the early days were very small. In 1921 $20,000 a year was appropriated with $5,000 of it for warden's services. Since the first licensing law went into effect, the activities of the Game Commission have become increasingly large.

One item of which Mr. Bailey spoke was particularly interesting to the older men present. He stated that the records show that in 1894 each of the following men received 1200 brook trout fry: F. E. Windsor, C. H. Smith, T. Messner, F. E. Reed, T. J. Foley, J. H. Fuelhart, H. P. Hunter, H. A. Kitchen, L. M. Riedsperger, J. L. Odomele, H. P. Riedsperger, A. C. Merck, G. Noyes, A. Hertzfel.

At the very outset of his talk, Mr. Bailey asked his auditors to feel perfectly free to interrupt him any time with questions, and a considerable number of questions were asked, to all of which he had the answers.

A number of local men were guests at the meeting, and two visiting Rotarians were present, one from Sheffield, and the other from Titusville.

OUR RENT IS DUE

Many Americans labor under the delusion that their country owes them a living and the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

An even greater number—intelligent enough to know that the privilege of being an American has been bought for them by the tears and blood of those who went before—nevertheless are complaisant about their good fortune and take the American heritage for granted.

Both of these classes need reminding that the freedom and privileges they enjoy—freedom of speech and of worship, freedom to work, free education, the highest living standard mankind ever has attained—all of these benefits flow from the composite good will of the people of the United States.

For the inestimable privilege of enjoying those benefits we owe a debt to the United States. That debt may well be called rent.

Unlike many landlords, Uncle Sam demands his rental fee only when he really needs it. This is one of those times. Your rent is due. Are you paying?

Those men who have volunteered, those men who have been drafted, their wives and children and parents are paying their rent.

How about the rest of us? Those who whine about the hours they have to work, the pay they get, are not paying their rent.

Those who do not buy war bonds and stamps up to the limit of their capacities are not paying their rent.

Those who waste precious rubber by unnecessary or careless motoring are not paying their rent.

Those who complain about necessary rationing programs, and decline to help save materials and transportation, are not paying their rent.

Those who will not take the trouble to gather metal scrap from around their homes and turn it in, to save grease for glycerine, to save tin cans for salvage, are not paying their rent.

Those who believe everything bad about our allies, and spread alarming and disturbing rumors, are not paying their rent.

Those who argue that we can not win—and those who contend that we can not lose—are not paying their rent.

Freedom and prosperity can not maintain themselves, except as we value them enough to pay the price. Our rent is due. Let's pay it.

IMPORTANT CONFERENCE

The problem of preventing tuberculosis from interfering with the war effort will be considered by Tuberculosis Association workers of northwestern Pennsylvania at a sectional conference to be held in Warren at the Carver Hotel Friday.

In making this announcement Dr. C. Howard Mercy, president of the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis Society, points out that "keeping physically fit men and women on the production lines is just as important as keeping men and guns at the front."

"In Warring European countries," he says, "tuberculosis has increased and extraordinary effort is needed to make sure that this preventable disease does not interfere with the war effort in the United States."

At the Warren meeting representatives of the national and state Tuberculosis Societies will join with the county delegates in considering plans for the 36th Christmas Seal Sale and increased activities for next year.

William B. Ziff is a noted civilian authority on aviation. More than that, he has worked out an all-American plan for victory in his book, "The Coming Battle of Germany". Here is a plan that is bold and dynamic, a strategy that is working even now. It is a book for Congressmen, war experts, arm chair generals—for you. Ask for this book at the Warren public library.

Spend a pleasant evening? Write a couple of V-mail letters to soldier or sailor friends overseas, suggests an exchange. Cost is only three cents. The letters will be worth $300, or more, to the boys who get them.

Warren motorists may just as well start getting used to driving 35 miles per hour. It's coming, and sooner than some folks anticipate.

If We Really Mean Business---

WASHINGTON IN WARTIME

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Capital dilemma: What happens when a big committee goes out of business?

Specifically, what happens now that the rubber investigating committee, composed of Bernard Baruch, Dr. James B. Conant and Dr. Karl T. Compton, has gone out of business? I don't mean what happens AS A RESULT of the committee report? That's up to the President, to Nelson, to Henderson, Ickes, Jesse Jones, Congress and others. I mean, what happens to the committee and its reports?

ALMOST before the ink was dry on the President's order setting up the rubber investigating committee, Baruch, Conant and Compton were holding outdoor conferences in Lafayette Park, across from the White House.

Less than five weeks later, Baruch, Conant and Compton had dropped their bombshell in the President's White House office. Within 24 hours, the three musketeers of investigation had folded their tents and gone home.

In that five weeks, their offices had spread from a split-slat park bench to a whole floor of that La Salle building—a floor big enough to house a battery of bowling alleys. Their staff had expanded from a Negro shoeshine boy to stenographers, clerks, secretaries, scientists, engineers, financiers. Their files started with notes on the back of an envelope from a pocket of one of Baruch's natty summer suits. You should see them now.

For instance, take that minor paragraph early in the report:

MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

(Last of Three Articles)
By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The Stork, mecca of celebrities and celebrity-hunters alike, is one of those curious places that starts off each year with a net profit item of $15,000 before a single pate de fois gras sandwich is sold.

The reason for this is simple: Sherman Billingsley, the owner, leases his hot check room to a concessionaire for $27,000. He pays $12,000 rent. This leaves a net of $15,000, but then, as he explains, "this is eaten up by the bad checks that we cash during the year."

"Also, we lose about a thousand a month in breakage. I used to have pretty little ash trays with storks on them because, when people photographed them in here, they looked well in pictures—it was a good ad. But people took them out by the dozens. The men would slip only one into a coat, but the women literally shoveled them into their handbags."

ANOTHER point on the debit side are the balloon parties that have become a part of the stock in trade at the Stork. On Sunday or holiday evenings guests would see a score of balloons attached to the ceilings. In some of these balloons would be $100 bank notes. At a given signal during the evening these balloons would be loosed upon a squealing, scrambling clientele. Billingsley has given away as many as twelve $100 notes in a single evening. Since the war, however, the prizes are war bonds, not money.

A good way to get your name in the newspapers, regardless of your identity, is to indulge in a Crude rubber on hand, July 1—378,000 tons; estimated imports, July 1, 1942 to Jan. 1, 1944—53,000 tons; estimated military needs for the same period, exclusive of any tires for passenger cars, 842,000 tons; deficit to Jan. 1, 1944—211,000 tons.

You don't get figures like that merely by ringing a telephone number and saying, "Hi, Butch, what's cooking?"

A DIGEST of the report alone took up eight solid columns of newspaper print. And there are few paragraphs in it that aren't backed by reams of details from experts, scientists, engineers and factual government reporting agencies.

Imagine the pages that had to be read, facts reviewed and experts heard to cut through all the blubber about Buna-S, neoprene, and Thiokol. Yet the committee did it and laid their digest on the line in five weeks (which, as one member put it, was still six months late).

The clerks, stenographers, etc., have followed the three committee members in deserting the La Salle building. The files of the committee and Sam Lubell, secretary to the committee, are still there.

The work of acting on the committee report is just getting under way. Those files may be vital in working out the laws and executive orders which will save us from a catastrophic rubber shortage. Somebody who knows there has to be on hand to see that the right ones fall into the hands of the right people.

fastidious in the Stork—but if you do, you will never be allowed to come back. There is a list of a dozen or so people prominent in the theatrical and sporting world who are no longer welcome at the Stork. These include a noted theatrical and Hollywood producer, an internationally famous tennis player, and a score of well-known playboys and visitors from the social and theatrical worlds. Their names have all been emblazoned across New York's daily newspapers, charged with indulging in public face-slappings.

"I don't want fighters or drunks," Billingsley says. "They annoy the real customers who behave themselves. They drive the decent people away."

THE Stork proper goes much beyond the simple opening at No. 3 East 53 street. It includes the cocktail bar, the main dining room, where most of the hilarity and the balloon chasing take place. Then there is a "Cub" room lavishly ornamented by paintings of gorgeous girls, done by noted artists. To satisfy the ladies the portraits of these artists adorn the walls of the ladies' rest room. Then there is the "Blessed Event Room" whose walls are entirely mirrored. These mirrors are to be replaced soon. "Poker players who like a little party up here object to the mirrors. Everybody can see what you've got in your hand," explains Billingsley. Finally, there is a checkered tablecloth room ornamented with bottles of costly wines and brandies. This room is for private steak and chop parties. Hundred-year-old brandy costs $3 a drink. Forty-year-old brandy costs $2. Billingsley will open any bottle, however rare and old, for a price.

From where I sit...

by Joe Marsh

In the square of a little village not far from here I came on the prettiest flower garden you ever saw.

It was a lot of flowers all mixed up—hundreds of different kinds, I guess. So I asked a passerby if he could tell me about it.

"Well," he says, "in this town whenever anybody plants a flower garden and has any seeds left, they scatter them over this plot."

Then he leans over and pulls out a couple of weeds. "We all have to help pull out the weeds too," he tells me. "That way the village has a flower garden to be proud of."

That's about as pretty an illustration of co-operation as I ever come across. But there's plenty of examples of co-operation and civic spirit these days.

We were talking just yesterday about how the brewers and the beer distributors are working together and co-operating with law enforcement authorities.

You see a lot of friendship and fine old customs have grown up around beer. But the weeds—well—they've got to be pulled out, too.

Everybody has to lend a hand. And the brewing industry is just sensible enough to recognize that... But what's more—they're doing something about it.

The brewers don't want their beer sold in the wrong kind of places, and so they've teamed up with the authorities in a self-regulation program to make careless beer retailers "clean up or close up," as they say.

From what I read, the plan is working out mighty successful in a number of states, and is spreading out into others.

From where I sit, it looks like a fine idea... a mighty practical example of how honest co-operation works out to the benefit of everyone—the brewers, the beer retailers, and us plain citizens that like our gardens and our pleasures—with the weeds kept out.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—If Randolph Scott has had his chest out on "The Desperadoes" set, it's doubtless because of the belt. Rummaging in his locker at Lakeside, he pulled out an old belt he used to wear in 1923. He tried it on and it fit—at the same notch he wore it 20 years ago. . . . Randy's physical culture boy—swims each summer and winter morning at the beach, uses bar-bells and weights, and keeps a 32-waist, 186 pounds properly distributed over his 6-3 height. . . . Jimmy Cagney's deal on "Yankee Doodle Dandy" gives him 19 per cent—and Warners are looking to a $10,000,000 gross! . . .

Mary Martin's pleading with Paramount to let her start a picture that has a script to start with—she had to see "Happy Go Lucky" to find out what it was about. For M. M.'s information, it's a hit. . . .

FREDRIC MARCH could feel his role in "Mark Twain" the other day—that scene in which the writer, honored at a banquet of literary notables of his day, gets into hot water with a yarn the other dignitaries think anything but funny. Once started, he's in too deep to stop, and must carry it on to a lame, sorry, sweating finish. March says it happened to him once—at a benefit where the yarn he picked, currently popular, died a cold death while March's been on hundreds of fishing trips, never caught a fish, and isn't fond of fishing. When he was a boy his father and uncle, regular Izaak Walton, took him out with them—and Walter's job was to row the boat! . . .

The writers seem to be on a concerted campaign to take the mysteries out of directing. Preston Sturges and "The Great McGinty," John Huston and "The Maltese Falcon," Billy Wilder and "The Major and the Minor," Arch Oboler and "This Precious Freedom," Norman Krasna and "Princess O'Rourke" are all entries in the "screenplay and directed by" derby, of course. . . .

THOSE luscious pictures of Alexis Smith in her nice gardening outfit have come back to plague her. Alexis and her father installed a victory garden in their backyard, after which Alexis had "Gentleman Jim" to do, and the weather got hot, and one thing and another came up—along with the weeds, the bugs and the other garden enemies. Not, however, before a number of pictures had been taken.

Papa Smith dropped a few hints about the work, all of which Alexis ignored. Then those pretty pictures started hitting the magazines. Papa Smith doesn't have to make comments now. He just grins happily and exhibits a picture of Alexis at work in her garden. Miss Smith has returned to the tomatoes. . . .

AROUND NEW YORK

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Voice teachers around the country believe that Margo has the best voice on the air. It is the "most friendly and warming" Margo is an actress-dancer-singer who was born in Mexico and who is a kinswoman of that fine caricaturist and rumba-tango-bolero bandsman, Xavier Cugat. It was Margo who teamed so well with Burgess Meredith in Maxwell Anderson's "Winterset," a drama that was awarded the Pulitzer Prize. Where is Margo now? Here in New York. She's featured on one of the big cigarette broadcasts with Lanny Ross. . . .

IT HAD to happen sometime. Phil Baker, a southpaw, cracked his finger and now has to play his accordion right-handed. First time he's been bothered that way in 20 years. Speaking of lefties and righties, I know a left-handed comic strip artist (Milton Caniff) who has labored long and hard against just such an emergency. If anything should happen to his left hand, he'd be able to go right ahead with his right. He does all his writing with his right hand anyway. . . .

One of the neatest similes in current news writing bobbed up in a column by DeWitt MacKenzie. . . . In discussing Wendell Willkie's mission abroad Mackenzie commented, "As a matter of fact, the big chap has been traveling like a tracer bullet." You couldn't ask for anything better than that. . . .

EVEN as a prophet, a talent scout is not without honor. save on Broadway. . . . Let's take the case of Ben Boyar, a horrible ex-actor, Mr. B. is supposed to recognize talent when he sees it. That's what he's paid for. The other day a young man slipped into the offices of Max Gordon and applied for a job in "Junior Miss."

"I'm Burton Boyar," he said. "Any kin to Ben Boyar?"

"Yes, sir, he's my father."

"Tell your dad I said to give you a contract," said Max Gordon, "and tell him a talent scout is without honor in his own family."

"I hope I'll be able to live this down at home," murmured young Boyar as he moved off in search of his dad. . . .

ARTURO TOSCANINI could talk of nothing but Shostakovich's "Seventh Symphony" after the work of that young Soviet fireman had been presented in New York. Now he can talk of nothing but the "Charles G. Dawes Melody in A," composed by the former vice president. Tommy Dorsey has recorded the composition.

German Gains in Two Attack Periods

Climaxed at Stalingrad with the war's bloodiest battle, Germany's current offensive in Russia has gained only half as much territory after three months as did the Nazis in the initial three months of invasion in 1941. CAPITAL GOSSIP

By JACK STINETT

WASHINGTON—Add up a million or so letters received at the White House, the Office of Civilian Defense, and the Office of War Information, and you will find that the most frequent civilian inquiry is: "What Can I Do?"

The question applies, of course, to "what can I do to aid in the war effort?" Some of them are heart-breaking. The writers sometimes are almost illiterate, but their sincerity shines through. One says: "I work all day but I could enlist in Defense at night." Another: "I have served in prison, and I want to do something for my country." A third: "Dear Mr. President, I am 7 years old, I am in the second grade, I feel the urge to help."

OCD has tried to answer them all in a pamphlet called "What Can I Do—The Citizen's Handbook for War." Its 48 pages are packed with guideposts for the civilians who want to help. Any one can get them for the asking at their state and local defense council offices.

THE text is the ABC's of cooperation in the war effort, illustrated with 64 drawings by Gluyas Williams, who did them for free. A lot of it is elementary. It points out that 53,000,000 Americans live in the so-called "target areas" and explains how they can black-out, etc. Such subjects as "civilian mobilization, conservation, salvage, the war budget (with allowances for purchase of war bonds): health, loose talk, and volunteer service in civilian defense agencies" are given a quick runover.

From there on, the pamphlet gets down to cases. Carpenters, plumbers and electricians can teach night training courses. Painters can go in for camouflage. There are jobs for truck, bus and taxi drivers, for miners, gardeners, butchers, bakers and wholesalers; for accountants, stenographers and clerks; for bankers, domestic help and barbers; for doctors, lawyers, nurses, preachers, librarians, musicians, architects, press agents, and newspaper men.

There are chapters on "What Men and Women on the Farm Can Do"; the contribution that can be made by boys and girls of school age; and, of course, a tabulation of voluntary civilian defense opportunities.

WHILE it is strictly a words-of-one-syllable pamphlet, it has an appendix that suggests scores of books and material for further guidance. There isn't a book or brochure in the whole list that can't be obtained free and the subjects cover the alphabet from Agriculture to War Savings Bonds.

OCD Director James M. Landis sums up the situation thusly: "Every man, woman and child in America has weapons for beating the Axis. You don't even need spare time to get into this war. Our weapons are all around us—in our homes and offices, schools and clubs."

The men at the Naval Air Station at Corpus Christi are taught how to use a parachute, how to get out of the parachute when coming down over water, and how to get the rubber life jacket ready for use.

The Great Lakes Seabee ship has been converted into an aircraft carrier for the training of Navy fliers.

Poppies have been planted in Germany for the oil yielded by the seeds.

Cooperation of All Farmers is Urged for Scrap Roundup

(From Page One) date a total of 74,000 pounds weighed in. This total is expected to rise by leaps and bounds as each day of this week passes. Regular junk dealers, as well as the Weigh Stations, are receiving a large share of the material being brought in.

Walter Ward, in charge of the Grange drive, reports that one Grange has 22 tons of scrap promised by a single individual. Others are expected to do as well. Several large prizes will be awarded to the Grange with the greatest per capita tonnage, as well as individual prizes. The slogan of the Granges is "Farmers, Show Your Metal." In line with this slogan, one Grange official said today: "The success or failure of the big drive is strictly up to the farmers now."

An additional Weigh Station within Warren borough was announced when the United Lumber & Supply Co. offered the use of its scales for weighing in any scrap that may be brought in. Weighmasters at the various stations are reminded again to have a messenger ready at noon on Friday to bring in all weigh sheets that have accumulated since Wednesday noon. These sheets should be brought to the office of C. L. Swanson, second floor, Warren National Bank Building.

It was also announced that another borough pickup will be conducted under the charge of H. R. McClure between Sept. 28 and Sept. 30. The exact date will be announced.

Busy Session Held By YWCA Board to Plan For Activities

Mrs. Carl Lundahl, YWCA president, was in charge of the September board meeting held Monday night. Plans were presented for the membership enrollment, October 5-12 and the opening dinner-meeting on October 1. Members voted, also, to assist with sale of war bonds and stamps at local theatres next week.

Plans for the Girl Reserve department were presented by the secretary, Dorothy Schmidt, reporting that 200 girls attended the opening tea, grade school groups are beginning this week and that 110 girls attended Camp Newtash this summer.

Repair work, covered in a report by Mrs. J. H. West, included painting of the gymnasium floor and repairs to chimneys and porches. The statistical report showed 2,396 had attended various functions in the activities building in the summer months, exclusive of the cafeteria department. This latter also showed a decided increase in daily attendance.

The residence secretary, Mrs. Mabel Swanson, reported 29 girls had found positions through the YW employment office, 12 had found rooms outside, three nights lodging were given girls who could not afford to pay and a total of 72 calls for workers was received.

In the business and professional department, Y-Debs were reported opening activities last night at Camp Jemore and the Ali-We-Je Club starting its season Thursday evening.

Mrs. W. F. Bennett reported on educational and recreational activities and Mrs. U. S. Rogers told of finances. Acknowledgement was made of an invitation from Titusville YW to the annual inter-town conference there on November 9-12; also for the fall conference of business girls in Pittsburgh October 17-18.

The meeting concluded with a resume of YWCA Day at Chautauqua this summer and special events at the hospitality house for Chinese workers were noted by Mrs. Franklin Hof.

BLUE STOCKINGS AT KANE MEETING

Members of the Blue Stocking Club attending the fall conference of the Northwest District, Pennsylvania Federation of Women's Clubs, held at Kane, were the Misses Ethel Morris, Mabel Higgins, Kate Winger, Mabel Abbott, Mrs. Vance Weld, Mrs. W. E. Lutz, Mrs. Burr Walker, Mrs. E. H. Beshlin and Mrs. Edith Smith.

One of the highlights was an address by Mrs. H. A. Overstreet on "Community Leadership in War Time and Post-war Needs", in which she stressed the importance of women simplifying their organizations for war work and the part they must play in bringing their communities back to normal living conditions in post-war days. Mrs. Lutz, of Warren, participated in the panel discussion which followed.

Among others heard were Mrs. Alfred A. Crooks, state president, and Mrs. John H. Williams, state chairman of legislature. Mrs. B. T. Perry, of Franklin, a state vice president, was in charge of the conference, which had a registration of 189 women from eight counties.

ENTERTAINS CLASS

Mrs. Clifford Johnson was hostess to the May R. Stone Class of the First Presbyterian church at her home near Clarendon Friday evening, assisted by Mrs. N. K. Wendelboe, Miss Hazel Thurston, Mrs. W. C. Sigworth and Mrs. Henry Wuesthoff. Guests were seated at a long table under the stars for the 6:30 supper and Mrs. Wuesthoff, leaving Warren soon, was presented a gift from the class. She thanked the members and expressed her regret in leaving the group.

Mrs. R. W. Stone, teacher, reminded members the class will meet as usual on Sunday mornings starting September 20, and the president, Mrs. Katharine Jones led a short discussion on club activities. More definite arrangements are to be made at the regular October meeting.

DUNKLE AND CRAFT RITES ANNOUNCED

Mrs. Glen Patchen announces the marriage of her daughter, Velma Marie Craft, to Lt. Jack Dunkle, the ceremony having been performed at 6:15 p. m. September 12 in the Lutheran parish at Battle Creek, Mich., by Rev. Rook. Attendants were Mrs. Helen Griffin and Lt. George Traghty.

The bride wore gold crepe, black accessories and yellow rosebuds and Mrs. Griffin wore beige with black accessories and red roses with baby's breath. The ceremony was followed by dinner served for ten guests at the home of Lt. and Mrs. Simmons. The couple will make their home at Richland, Mich., since Lt. Dunkle is stationed at nearby Fort Custer.

ENLISTED GIVEN FAREWELL PARTY

Dean C. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Anderson, of North Warren, who has enlisted in the United States Navy and will leave Friday for his station, was given a farewell Sunday by relatives and friends. Guests at his home included Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Cochran and family, Warren; Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Anderson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Donaldson and family, the Misses Bonnie and Bettina Anderson, North Warren; Mr. and Mrs. Arden Anderson and son, of Corry; Mr. and Mrs. William Atkins, Niagara Falls.

FOR RUTH JOHNSON

Members of the New Process Company's graphotyping department entertained with a dinner at Oakview complementing Miss Ruth Johnson, who is to be a bride on September 25. The bride-elect was presented with a useful gift for her new home by the following: Mrs. Margaret Westburg, Mrs. Myrtle Lord, Mrs. Inogene West, Mrs. Vera Nesmith and the Misses Margaret Kiernan, Wanda Zawacki, Phyllis Belchner, Katherine Goodwin, Evelyn Gaghan, Kathryn Gagner and Josephine Cardamone.

R. D. SOCIETY

There were 26 members of the R. D. Society in attendance for the first fall meeting held in Dunham parlors of the First Methodist church. Several items were brought before the membership by the president, Mrs. Leon Laskaris, and devotions were led by Mrs. Francis Erickson, with topics and reports presented by Mrs. N. E. Paterson, Miss Pearl Lund and Mrs. S. E. Saylor.

CANCEL LUNCHEON

Announcement is made today that the combined luncheon planned by the Arbutus and Second auxiliaries of the First Presbyterian church for Friday of this week has been cancelled because of the 120th anniversary activities of the parish, opening on Sunday.

ERROR IN ITEM

The Times-Mirror has been asked to state that the marriage of Winona McAvoy and Joseph Farr, which was reported in these columns last week, took place on August 1, 1941, and not in 1942 as was previously stated.

Salute to Fall Evenings

Hattie Carnegie designed this spectacularly "different" fall 1942 dining costume, at left. A bold appropriation from the sports world is the mannish jacket of warm Scotch wool. It is worn with the long, full black velvet skirt shown here, or, more informally, with soft, curve-revealing velvet slacks. A bouffant evening suit of double-duty importance is this handsome ensemble, right, designed by Sophie. The jacket, with scalloped edge of black velvet, is worn for "little" informal evenings and removed for "big" festivities, revealing a striking, square decalage. Dress is white faille applied with black velvet.

Cards Beat Pirates to Retain Two and Half Game Lead

Singles By Second Baseman Brown Account for Two Of Runs Scored by Leaders

Three Deep

BY SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The chances are you are never going to see Jimmy Brown up there in the hall of fame. And you'd be willing to bet any year against his chances of landing the most valuable player award.

But when it comes to handing out the posies to the guy who did as much or more than anyone else to bring the St. Louis Cardinals the National League pennant, don't overlook James Robinson Brown of the Jamesville (S.C.) Browns, please.

After their 2-1 win over Pittsburgh yesterday—in which second sacker Brown, incidentally, knocked both runs across—the Cards still sported a 2½ game bulge, with only five to go, even though Brooklyn took a 3-1 decision over the Phils, and around Broadway today, the boys were laying 20-1 against the bums.

There will no doubt be some arguments over Jimmy Brown, of course. Folks generally brush him off with, "oh, yeah, he's pretty good too, but he's only batting .260." Yet, National League managers say he's the key man in the works.

It should also be pointed out that it's not so much what Jimmy does while he's in there—but what the Cardinals do when he's out. For in the last three seasons—1939, '40 and '41—it was while Jimmy was on the shelf with assorted ailments that the Cards blew their chances. And as soon as he got back into action, they thundered down the stretch.

Naturally, this sounds like something out of Frank Merriwell, but just to polish it off, don't forget that he was on the sidelines only six days this year. And from the day he came back in mid-August the Cards started the surge that has carried them to 36 victories in 43 games.

Yesterday he pulled one out of the fire almost without any help. In the fourth inning he singled the first run home. Then, after the Bucs tied it up, he drilled a hit through the infield in the ninth to knock the game-wrecker across.

Meaning the Dodgers took a 3-1 lead in the first frame against the Phils and hung onto it, although Kirby Higbe was in more tough spots than a rubber check specialist.

Marv Brenner looked like a sure winner for the Yankees over the Red Sox as he allowed only one hit for eight innings. Then Ted Williams' 36th homer tied it up in the ninth and Tony Lupien's single in the 11th gave Boston a 3-2 decision and Tex Hughson his 21st win of the year. In the only other big league game of the day, Detroit rolled over the Chicago White Sox 6-4.

Rockets and Dragons Meet Here Saturday

Titusville's Rockets will be here Saturday afternoon to meet Warren's Dragons and from all indications it will be one of the real games of the season. J. B. Leidig, mentor of the Warren team, said this morning "You just can't figure out that Titusville bunch. They always give us a hard battle. I haven't any real sidelights on the Rockets but so far this season they have a good record."

The game Saturday will be played at 2:30 p. m. and from all in-

Sportingly Speaking

(Contributed by Jack Schumacher, Youngsville)

Next Year's Football—The most plausible solution to the difficulties 'hat will face Warren, Sheffield and Youngsville in their endeavors to field gridiron aggregations representing their respective schools in 1943 are limited to two in number. The first of these two explanations is merely the dropping of football for the duration, while the second, which is the most acceptable answer, is adoption of the system undertaken by the five Erie high schools last week to determine their city champion next year. East, Academy, Vincent, Tech and Prep have drawn up a program calling for a double round robin series under which system each school will play the others twice. Since all contests will be played in the Stadium, one battle against a rival will be considered a home game and the other a road attraction. If the three Warren county schools adopt this system, they naturally will have more problems to face because they are not as strategically situated as the Erie schools and therefore are confronted to some extent with transportation problems. This and other difficulties facing such a setup could and can be ironed out. Warren annually opens against Youngsville and the Eagles and Sheffield always reserve their closing of negotiating another game this fall, but the absence of conflicting dates for each other. The Wolverines and the Red and White talked open dates made such an attempt impossible. The only barrier to the schedule angle thus lies in the carding of a pair of games between the Dragons and the Orange and Black. This is no real problem at all, however, since Warren will probably drop, and be dropped, by teams they play this year, due to mileage distances. The method of transporting players between Warren, Sheffield and Youngsville can only be met next fall when we see what means of traveling the teams have at their disposal. Outside of the conveyance angle, there are no other outstanding obstacles that cannot be faced. Understand, however, we do not say such a circuit will be formed, nor do we propose it, but rather we believe such a loop has a sound basis and that county fans would go for it in a big way, since it would be the only gridiron wars in their own backyards a year from now.

Sidelines On Sports—Harry "Butch" Scully, the National Forge's number one Sunset League fan, is up and around after a serious attack of appendicitis. . . . If the Jamestown Falcons defeat Olean in the Governor's Cup playoffs, we would not be at all surprised to see the sporting populace of that city run Manager Greg Mulleavy for governor. . . . Fans there are behind the Falcons to such an extent that the men of Mulleavy have outdrawn many nearby Class "C" league teams for the second straight year. . . . Jamestown's baseball enthusiasts deserve a good brand of baseball and the Falcons have given them just that. . . . The Kane High Wolves will be running into another football field of trouble on Saturday when they invade Sheffield for a game with Coach "Lo" Eisenhauer's Wolverines. . . . The Orange and Black is the county's only unbeaten team, as they came through with a big 46-0 win over the Waterford Bisons in their only start. . . . National Forge baseball records have just been compiled and should be ready for publication tomorrow or Thursday. . . . Bowling still holds the weekly sporting spotlight as local keglers burn up the slides at the Penn Center and Arcade nightly. . . . Geneva will be without the services of Andy "Moose" Bedner Saturday when they meet Carnegie Tech. . . . Bedner, one of the greatest linemen in Youngsville history, has been advised by Geneva officials to drop football until the weakened condition of his heart can be corrected. . . . Kegling and the Titusville game on Saturday are your best sporting activities.

Tiny Flea To Help Provide Better Catches of Bass

BY JERRY WEINSTEIN

Harrisburg, Sept. 22 (P)—If there's a bigger and better catch of bass waiting anglers in Pennsylvania lakes and ponds next year, credit the tiny flea.

For the first time in the history of the state—and probably the nation—shipments of the aquatic version of the flea are being sent with bass for stocking purposes.

"This innovation should give us the greatest supply of bass we've ever had," C. A. French, commissioner of fisheries, said today.

The flea—actually it's a water bug the size of a pin head called daphnia—is a natural food for baby bass. It causes the fish to grow—and to greater sizes in less time.

"Practically all the lakes we stock with bass will be supplied with daphnia," French said.

The commission's second annual bass-stocking program now is underway. Distribution is limited to bodies of water already containing bass and having an area of 40 acres or more.

Just as the bass for stocking are developed in the state hatcheries, indications a big crowd will turn out. The Dragons are pointing for a hard game and this week are being given some intensive practice preparatory to the contest.

so is the daphnia cultured by commission experts.

"Growing daphnia is a difficult process," French commented. "Our men seem to have conquered it, however, since we've been producing about eight bushels a day while previously the average was about three quarts per day."

Bass for the state-wide stocking program is cultured in hatcheries at Union City, Corry, Bellefonte, Tionesta, Reynoldsville and Pleasant Mount.

Zivic Whips Philadelphian

Philadelphia, Sept. 22 (P)—Ring-wise Fritz Zivic showed youthful Johnny Walker a thing or two about the boxing game at Convention Hall last night.

The 29-year-old Pittsburgher and former welterweight champion cuffed the 19-year-old Philadelphia negro around at will to win a decisive 10-round decision before 9,660 who contributed to a gross gate of $20,783.25.

Walker, a 5 to 1 underdog, was rated a chance with the veteran because of a terrific right hand punch, but Zivic never gave the youth a chance to connect. Instead Walker absorbed a sound drubbing and had a closed right eye and swollen features to prove it.

It was Zivic's 159th fight as a professional and Walker's 15th.

Heavyweights In New York

New York, Sept. 22 (P)—Sgt. Joe Louis and Pvt. Billy Conn, w. have been training for the event the past week, come into New York City today from their respective camps to sign the contract for their world heavyweight title fight in Yankee Stadium on Oct. 12.

The signing takes place at noon in the offices of the New York Boxing Commission.

Louis comes in from Greenwood Lake, N. Y., where yesterday he romped through a six-mile stretch in the road and then pounded four sparring mates. After the drill the champion weighed 213 pounds.

Conn is going through his camp paces on the Rumson, N. J., estate of Promoter Mike Jacobs.

A recent analysis of Army Air Force accidents shows that 14 percent are the result of mechanical failures.

A Promise for Tomorrow

BY
ATTERBURY

Yesterday, Julie Hamilton is a successful doctor, even if she does look like a glamour girl. But she can do nothing for Pete Fowler, who is kept out of the air corps because of an injury—who even seems blind to the fact that Julie adores him. And now Julie's life is complicated by the fact that the father of Dawn Kelland, the girl Pete seems to have chosen, just has had a stroke.

Chapter Five Strange Fear

JULIE was just leaving the hospital the next morning when she bumped into Bart—literally. Her mind still busy with the details of the operation she had performed, she pushed through the heavy revolving door, hurried unseeing down the broad granite steps.

"Where are you going, my pretty maid?" Bart's voice broke into her thoughts.

She stopped, stared at him a moment absently. "Oh, it's you."

"Yes, angel, Bartley Rogers III. Remember me? I'm the guy that proposes to you twice a week."

She laughed up at him. "Fool. Why don't you grow up?"

He straightened. "Doing the best I can, ma'am. Why don't you have lunch with me?"

"Can't," she refused, automatically. "Too busy."

"What do you mean, too busy? This is Saturday. Even successful lady doctors don't have to work on Saturdays, do they?"

"Well, I really should—"

"Good. Well, drive out to the Club and have some golf after-noon. He took her arm firmly, guided her to the sleek tan coupe parked at the curb.

Without protest, Julie let him put her into the broad seat. She was tired and a round of golf would ease the taut nerves. Drop by house first. There may be some messages."

"I will if you promise ahead of time to ignore all summons."

"Maybe." She leaned back against the comfortable seat. "I am weary."

"And glad I came after you?" Bart protested, smiling a little wryly. "Come on. Tell me you like being taken care of—by me."

"I love it."

"And me too?" She shook her head. "No, not and you too."

"Tomorrow will you?" "Can't promise anything. Tomorrow's a secret."

Julie's heels clicked hollowly on the wide porch steps as she ran. Hulda, the stolid Norwegian housekeeper who ruled the Hamilton household with benevolent despotism, met her at the door.

"Any calls, Hulda?" "Yust von, Miss Joolie. Miss Kelland wants Dr. Tom should stop in right away." Taking Julie's bag she put it carefully on the old umbrella stand.

"Did you call Dad?" "She nodded and shook her head alternately. "I called him and he was not there. So he was out to Surfside to have a baby."

"Okay, I'll drop by Kelland's on my way out to the Club. Be back about eleven."

"You should sleep instead of flying out again this way." Hulda scolded gently. "You got back circles under the eyes."

Fear In Her Eyes
Julie laughed, slammed the front door as she went. Black circles under her eyes and butterflies in her tummy. It just wasn't good sense to over-tax her strength. In all her life, she'd never been so tired as she was right this minute.

She stopped at Kelland's long enough to reassure Dawn, explain her father's delay.

"How is your father this morning?"

"Resting quietly. I think."

Dawn's white face seemed drawn, years older suddenly. "But I do hope Dr. Tom gets here soon."

"He will," she promised. Then, "Look, Dawn, you must keep better control over your own nerves. Getting the jitters won't help your father any. Why don't you come out to the Club with us and have a swim or play some golf and relax."

"Thanks, but I couldn't possibly." Dawn shook her head nervously. It was another cigarette from the stub of one she was just finishing.

"Why not?" "I—that is—I'm expecting guests."

"Rubbish. Have Jarvis explain what has happened."

"No, really. Thank you, Julie. I couldn't possibly."

Julie caught the look in the wide blue eyes now—the same strange fear that she had seen there only hours before when Dawn had heard Dr. Tom's verdict. Dawn was in mortal terror.

Julie realized suddenly. All out of proportion to the seriousness of her father's condition.

"Dawn—" On impulse, Julie took a step nearer the girl, put out her hand. "Is there anything I can do to help?"

Without moving, Dawn seemed to withdraw even farther into herself. "No. Thank you, Julie. Nothing."

Julie hesitated, keeping her smile serene. "Dad will be in to see you shortly. I'm sure. Meanwhile, don't torture yourself with worry. Bye."

"Thanks, Julie. Bye."

Sinister Face
JULIE let herself out the front door, went slowly, thoughtfully down the steps toward the car waiting in the drive. What strange fears could be tearing Dawn so cruelly? She'd seemed so happy, so confident, so self-assured. All her cool savoir-faire, her smiling self-confidence, faded with strain now. And why? She had never seemed so devoted to her father. In fact their quarrels were no secret. And yet now, the knowledge that he would be an invalid made her so sorrowful so much as terrified.

"All set?" Bart flung open the car door.

Julie nodded. "Tried to get Dawn to come too, but she's having guests."

"And how?" Bart whistled softly then as a flashy green phaeton turned into the private drive.

"Pretty smooth, huh? But a little buggy like that set him back a small fortune. And boy, look at all that beautiful rubber!"

Feasting his eyes on the two white-topped tires mounted on the rear.

"That's positively tempting fate."

"A disgustingly ostentatious display of wealth," Julie joined in the laugh. "Dawn likes her men."

Julie stopped in the middle of her thought as she caught sight of the swarthy face behind the wheel. For an instant she met the stranger's glance, piercing black eyes, heavy brows, a skin tanned to the color of weathered saddle leather.

"Dark, and in this case not so handsome," Bart muttered as they passed the car, turned out into the street. "Wonder who that is?"

"I wonder," Julie echoed quietly. "Personally, I wouldn't care to meet that face on a dark night. He looks like a bandit."

Bart laughed. "And probably he's as tame as a pussy cat. Bandits who are really professional don't go around looking like brigands, you know."

"Well, it will be terribly anticlimactic if there isn't something sinister about him," Julie said flippantly.

"Now look here, Julie, my sweet," Bart began severely, reached for her hand. "I didn't waylay you so you could talk to me about some other guy. Let's talk about us."

Julie laughed, tried to let go of the idea that skirted her mind just out of reach of clear logic. "Okay. What shall we say about us?"

"We are nice," Bart began properly. "We're very becoming to each other. We like the same people. We like the same things. We like each other very much. Don't we?"

"Un-huh," she agreed, smiling a little absently while her thoughts pursued a scurrying idea like foxhounds on the scent. What connection was there between Dawn's strange terror and her ever stranger guest?

To be continued

Yesterday, Temporarily, the hurt in Julie Hamilton's heart has been screened by the terror in Dawn Kelland's eyes. Julie loves a young, but grounded, aviator named Pete Fowler—and Pete seems to have turned to Dawn. But now Dawn's highly unpopular father has had a stroke, and Dawn's fear seems incongruous in the light of her and her father's frequent quarrels. And another difficulty with Julie is that she is not only friend of all concerned—she is also a doctor.

Chapter Six
The Green Car

WITHIN the next few days, Julie's suspicions mounted steadily. Two of them saw the flashy green car standing under the porte-cochere of the old Kelland mansion. Once she saw it leaving the grounds long after midnight. Then the first sunny Sunday morning that the telephone didn't summon her to the hospital, she pulled on a bathing suit, warm woolen slacks and a sweater, and drove the short-cut River Branch road through the low foothills to the beach. As she parked her car, a horn sounded mysteriously behind her, and an instant later a green phaeton flashed past, turned right, headed up the main highway north.

Strange, young man leaves town, Julie thought wryly as the car streaked out of sight.

A big blue-gray dog bounded into the road, stood barking furiously at the speeding car. A moment later a familiar figure limped out of the shadow of tall trees pressing close to the roadway. He saw Julie at the same moment, smiled, waved. She should have remembered this was Pete's favorite spot.

"Hello," he shouted, flapped a beach towel at her. "Going in?"

Julie wriggled out of her slacks, pulled on a bathing cap. "Yes, you?" And hoped she didn't look as pleased as she was.

"Who's your friend?" Pete shouted again over the tumult of Colleen was still setting up. "Here, Colleen. Be still."

The big silver-gray terrier stopped obediently, trotted toward the bend in the road where the car had disappeared.

"Not my friend. He's Dawn's, isn't he?"

Pete shook his head. "She's never seen him before either."

asked her that yesterday when he went by. He skids out of town every morning about this time. Colleen and I've seen him half a dozen times. Always drives as if he premeditated murder."

Julie held her tongue. Let Pete keep his theories. Still, growing toward the bend in the road where the car had disappeared.

"The right to look Tommy and Joe and all the other boys straight in the eye the day they come home," he said doggedly. "The right to live at peace with my own conscience the rest of my life in the event that they don't come home."

"Oh—Pete! Don't!" but her voice snagged on a sob that crowded suddenly into her throat. All the anger gone now, she put out her hand to him.

But, ignoring the gesture if he saw it at all, Pete leapt to his feet, whistled at Colleen who was happily worrying a piece of driftwood down the beach.

"Now that we've had our usual jolly little chat, I'll push along. Come on, lass."

The dog ambled up to him, thrust a sandy wet nose into his hand affectionately.

"Want a ride?" Julie suggested, knowing it was useless to hope he'd accept.

"No thanks," he pulled a sweat-shirt over his head. "Need the exercise. So long."

She watched him out of sight. His uneven stride jerking like a hic-cough in her throat. "Their usual jolly chat," he'd said. Why was it that every time they exchanged half a dozen words, it developed into a sharp quarrel? Certainly she didn't intend to provoke him. Did he snap at everybody like that—Dawn too? Probably not. She stood up, brushed the sand off her suit. It only proved beyond any shadow of doubt that Pete had endowed her with all the virtues of a kid sister with whom he could argue and quarrel endlessly.

But who wanted to be "sister" to the one man in the world who mattered? She demanded of the sand-bulling at her ankles as she wandered back up the beach to her car.

Farm Hands are Foiled in Abduction Plot
nell, asserted they were waiting to kidnap O'Connell's 14-year-old daughter, Mary Catherine, when she returned from school.

But, Damisch said, O'Connell outwitted one of his captors, Merle Smith, 17, clubbed him into unconsciousness and later with a posse of farmers seized the second youth, Fred Dubay, 16. He said both were charged with assault with intent to kill.

Damisch told how the two youths for several hours had terrorized O'Connell, 44; his wife, Jessie, 43; her father, Charles Brackett, 72; and his daughter, Harriet Brackett, 35, in their Big Rock farm home.

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Sept. 22 (P)—Two United States soldiers were under arrest today following the detatch of Edward Clegg, 30, a saloonkeeper who was found shot and beaten on a road near his home outside Belfast.

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), Sept. 22 (P)—DNE, official German news agency, said today that British planes raided the Schleswig-Holstein area last night.

New York Sept. 22 (P)—Fire broke out today in the two forward hatches of a merchant vessel docked at Staten Island. Four alarms were sounded. The Third Naval District authorized publication of the information.

Moscow Sept. 22 (P)—Col. Alva Harvey, who arrived in Moscow August 31 with six other United States army officers to assist Maj. Gen. Follett Bradley's mission to expedite deliveries of war materials to Russia, departed with his mission Saturday, it was announced today. He left as he had arrived, in a Russian plane. His destination was not announced.

Middletown, Sept. 22 (P)—An airplane crashed into a home near the Middletown army air depot today. First reports were that the pilot was killed and the plane caught fire and burned.

Klahr McDonald Wins Eagle Scout Rank; Is High Honor

Ten Scouts of the Warren District were presented for advancement in rank last Friday night at a Board of Review held at Scout Headquarters in Warren. Leading the list of ten applicants were J. Warren White of Troop No. 4 and Klahr McDonald of Troop No. 2 both of whom were admitted to the ranks of the select when they attained Scouting's highest honor, the rank of Eagle Scout.

White became a Tenderfoot Scout in November 1939 and in April of 1940 advanced to rank of Second Class Scout. July of 1940 saw him become a First Class Scout, in February of 1941 having earned five Merit Badges he became a Star Scout and June of the same year when he had earned seven more Merit Badges he became a Life Scout. At Friday night's Board of Review he presented himself to the reviewers after having earned twenty-one merit badges and having made an exceptional record as a Scout and a Junior officer of the Troop.

Klahr McDonald became a Tenderfoot Scout in November 1939, a Second Class Scout in January 1940 and first Class Scout in June of the same year. He then began his work on the Merit Badge trail toward the goal of Eagle Scout and was advanced to the rank of Star Scout in November of 1940. February of last year found him with a total of twelve required Merit Badges and the rank of Life Scout, while Friday night saw him passing over the threshold of Scouting's highest honor of Eagle Scout rank. Both Scouts have outstanding records as leaders in their respective Troops.

At the same Board of Review Lawrence Werner, Troop No. 14 Russell; Leland Daye, Troop No. 4 Warren and Norman Cable of Troop No. 9 Warren became Star Scouts.

Forrest Bainbridge of Troop No. 9 Warren, John Robertson, Bill Hill and John Knapp, all of Troop No. 4 Warren and Walter Wheelock of Troop No. 14 Russell, became Life Scouts, which is Scouting's second highest rank.

Each of the Scouts appearing at the advanced board of Review had been the subject of very careful examination and investigation by the Advancement Committee of the Council. Five references of searching nature are required of each Scout.

Those who served as members of the reviewing Board were J. E. Hazeltine, Chairman; B. W. Knapp, Wm. M. Hill, Floyd Carter, George Hesch, and H. L. Blair.

The turning point may come with the Joan Crawford film, "Women in Uniform," story of the WAACs, and with "Hands of Mercy," story of Army nurses in the Philippines.

There's "Wake Island," saga of the Marines. There's a woman in the cast, but Barbara Britton will tell you she can scarcely find herself in the melee of action. Hers is the role of a wife who stays at home.

There's "Clear for Action"—with Robert Taylor, Charles Laughton, Brian Donlevy, Walter Brennan and a fair-sized section of a movie navy. A couple of women appear, but the roles are fleeting.

There's "Air Force"—with John Garfield, Harry Carey, Gig Young, Arthur Kennedy and other men. Three feminine roles, all small.

"Eagle Squadron" had only one important girl, Diana Barrymore, to a flock of male eagles. "Captains of the Clouds" followed the lead of "I Wanted Wings" in having its feminine protagonist, Brenda Marshall, play "heaven" to its raft of heroes. "Flying Tigers" has Anna Lee as heroine, but with that title, plus John Wayne and John Carroll, we give you one guess where the emphasis lies.

The turning point may come with the Joan Crawford film, "Women in Uniform," story of the WAACs, and with "Hands of Mercy," story of Army nurses in the Philippines.

THE turning point may be forced earlier, as some in Hollywood believe, by the enlistment of Clark Gable who finally won his sincere desire—acceptance as a private. The Gable example, unless actors as a group have become less sensitive, may have influenced by now a number of other men who have been sticking to their movie jobs until called. The popular acclaim for Gable's course (and it's deserved by a guy who couldn't be insincere if he tried) can have a potent effect in disparaging by inference the morale workers and the bond-sellers among the stars—many of whom, fortyish like Gable, couldn't stand the physical grind of a buck private's life.

IN THE unlikely event that too many of Hollywood's experienced actors get into uniform, this "essential industry" will be caught on the well-known horns. Aside from box-office values, there's an immediate problem to the breaking-in of acting recruits. That's raw film. The WPB is cracking down on industry use of a product made from munitions-essential materials, demanding still further economies.

One of the expedients already in use is prolonged rehearsals to cut down the number of "takes" on scenes.

Winners In Dog Contest

The annual Youngsville Dog Show was held Thursday evening Sept. 17, as a feature of the Youngsville Community Fair with Don Warner, chairman of the show and Wyllys Johnson, secretary. William Warr of Warren was, as in several years past, judge of the show.

All breeds had separate classes with classes for each sex. The winners of each class received ribbons. The dogs were divided into groups with a silver trophy given to the winner in each group and one for the "Best Dog in the Show." The trophy for the best in the show was awarded to a black cocker spaniel—Rhythmic Rumpus—owned by Mrs. Richard C. Heasley, 88 Kenedy St., Bradford, Pa. This dog also headed the sporting dog group.

In the Terriers, the group trophy was awarded to a Welsh Terrier, Glencoe Pankyboy, owned by Betty Mills Baratta, Meadville, Pa.

In the Beagle Hound group the trophy was awarded to Beagle Hound Satchville Midge—owned by Glen H. Tillotson, Bear Lake, Pa.

In the Toy Dog group the winner was Patty, a toy Boston Bull, owned by Mrs. R. L. Mead of Youngsville.

The winner in the Working Dog group was a Doberman Pinscher, Dutchess Little Girl—owned by Mrs. Frank Frederick, Warren, Pa.

Over forty dogs were entered. Winners in the poultry judging contest with Robert Albright, chairman, were as follows: 1—Edward Zawocki, 2—Ernest McGraw, 3—Charles Crockett, 4—Seward Jordan, 5—Elworth Reynolds.

Bomber pilots must be more experienced than fighter flyers since the bomber pilot is responsible for the lives of the four other men with him, while the fighter is on his own.
